Heritage Conservation and Japan's Cultural Diplomacy

Heritage, National Identity and National Interest

Natsuko Akagawa

Series: Routledge Contemporary Japan Series

This book examines how Japan’s heritage conservation policy and practice, as deployed through its foreign aid programs, became one of the main means through which post-World War II Japan sought to mark its presence in the international arena, both globally and regionally. It reveals the link between Japan’s involvement in heritage conservation and its sense of national identity, and its desire to appear as a responsible global and regional citizen.
